As a senior project manager and marine biologist at Archipelago Marine Research Ltd., I am in the position to provide leadership to those I supervise formally and informally, in addition to the rest of my colleagues, peers and clients. I have had the great fortune to receive executive coaching with Sandora Hedrich over the past two years to assist me with developing my leadership skills. Through my coaching with Sandora, I have experienced many great benefits such as increased work-life balance, confidence, positivity, and productivity, as well as improved communication and ability to assist others with developing their skills and accelerating their growth within the company. I have received verbal feedback from my own supervisor that she has observed this growth in my leadership skills and confidence. Sandora's quality of coaching is superlative, as she is intuitive, supportive, and engages you to be honest with your self, and truly address and eliminate the roadblocks to success. I continue to coach with Sandora and provide my highest recommendation of her coaching skills.
